A Place at the Table - Wikipedia

A Place at the Table illuminates the politics behind America's food insecurities and what government can do to ameliorate this problem so that the average American family or individual can work towards self-sufficiency. (I would have liked more attention paid to the private sector and wage disparities.)

5/5 A Place at the Table, by Saadia Faruqi and Laura Shovan, is a middle-grades novel written in two voices. Both narrators are sixth grade girls. First, Sara Hameed is the daughter of Pakistani immigrants. She had attended a small, private Muslim school where she felt very comfortable, but now she is a student at a large, public middle school, where she feels sorely out of place.
